Good Will For The Asking

Contrary to the notion that veterans' rights to return to their jobs under the Selective Service Act are in conflict with certain union contracts and therefore make a legal problem, they look more like a public relations problem for labor unions.

If unions with closed shop agreements stand arbitrarily on their rights at the expense of the guarantee of re-employment included in the Selective Service act, they will give themselves a gratuitous eye with members of a group whose good will they need to cultivate for their own welfare.

It is possible the Department of Justice, for example, might be able to split legal hairs in a manner satisfactory to lawyers, or that the War Labor Board and other government agencies might build up a Rubik Goldberg creation of rulings and regulations seeming to cover the problem, but the logical solution lies with labor unions themselves. The dominant fact in the whole matter is that the American people made a contract with men inducted under selective service that when they returned from military service they were to be reinstated in the jobs they left, with no loss of seniority or priority. Questions arising over the act's interpretation are to be settled by the U. S. district courts.

There have been many changes since 1940, when the act was passed. But there has been no change in the nation's debt to the men who made the greatest sacrifice during the war. It goes without saying that any attempt to lessen the re-employment they were guaranteed by legalisms, regardless of their origin, would be a breach of faith. At the same time, every effort to live up to the re-employment rights specified in the Selective Service act will be a gesture of good will that will be doubly appreciated because of doubts that it is forthcoming when needed.

The Power To Make Decisions

One of the hard problems for every nation planning to join the United Nations organizations will be the delegation of power to make decisions in the security council and the general assembly. The members of the council and the delegations in the assembly will be acting in behalf of their governments and in matters of extreme importance. But unless they are given authority to be something more than transmitters for decisions reached by higher officials somewhere else, their proceedings will have no real substance.

The problem posed itself in the San Francisco conference, where it was imperative at the outset that Commissar Molotov should be present to speak for Russia and Foreign Minister Eden for Britain. It was obvious that without officials of their rank to give proceedings an aura of authority at the beginning, the conference might bog down in the futility of lesser officials lacking authority to speak for their governments.

In the method devised by the United States delegation may lie at least a tentative pattern for procedure by this government. Mr. Stettinius, as chairman of the delegation, was in close touch with the responsible authorities in Washington, including the Senate. He knew the minds of the higher officials responsible for his decisions and for the decisions of the delegation. They, in turn, had confidence in him and the delegation.

The United Nations organization, if it works, will entail new procedures for handling new responsibilities. It must be assumed that the procedures will be forthcoming, because to assume otherwise would be to consign the organization to ineffectuality before it begins.

Off The Cuff

A report by Air Transport association, representing 21 airlines, that air mail profits in the last three years have wiped out the Postoffice Department deficit accumulated in the first 25 years of this service is a milestone in development of a public subsidy policy.

Airlines were made possible by the government's air mail subsidy. Today, the lines are carrying 12 times as much mail in one day as they carried in a year in 1918. A deficit of $128,734,266 as accumulated, according to the Air Transport association report, but current operation is bringing in an estimated annual profit of $70,000,000 to the Postoffice Department. Meanwhile, carrying charges have been scaled down progressively. The major source of revenue now is no longer mail, which constituted more than 80 per cent of income in 1932. Passengers now furnish more than 70 per cent of income.

Such figures are the postlude to a debate that has been carried on for more than a generation—with no conclusions reached because subsidies could not be rationalized on any known basis. They were intended to produce ultimate, not immediate, benefits. In the case of the nation's air lines, some of the ultimate benefits now are known.

Recruiting For The Future

The Navy Department's appeal for more chaplains to meet the needs of its personnel cannot be ignored. It is a direct challenge to perform indispensable service—to build the nation's spiritual future with the finest human materials ever made available. The war's hard experiences have demonstrated innumerable times that young Americans in the armed services yield to a kind of instinctive need for spiritual growth. If there are any instances of chaplains feeling their time wasted, they are unknown.

Military officials, recognizing this, have tried to answer the demand for more chaplains. But they have never quite succeeded. The demand is still increasing, and the supply is not catching up. Until it does catch up, in both services, a great opportunity will be slighted. Chaplains cannot be drafted for duty, but to the great number of those who have drafted themselves to perform a duty should be added the hundreds still needed to give the young Americans in the armed services what they frankly admit they need. Religion is not being forced on them; they are asking it only to give a little more of itself for their welfare.

Pardonable Error

If there is anything more than facetiousness behind a French magazine's broad indictment of young Americans in France (for drinking too much, laughing too much, taking too much for granted and failing short of the Hollywood standard in romancing) the error of their behavior is pardonable.

For a generation the notion has been talked up in this country that in France everything was toujours gai and wide open for Yankees in France. The notion was brought home from World War I by the fathers and uncles of the Americans who found themselves in France in World War II.

If they gained the impression that France, particularly Paris, was a sort of endless fun house for Americans between battles, it was only because they took the reports of their elders too literally. Meanwhile, since the French themselves have brought up the matter, it might be well for them to be on guard against some of the impressions Americans serving in their country have formed. It seems probable the next American generation's impressions of France may leave a lot less rosy imagination than was left after 1918, and that would be a net gain in international relations.

The Stars Say

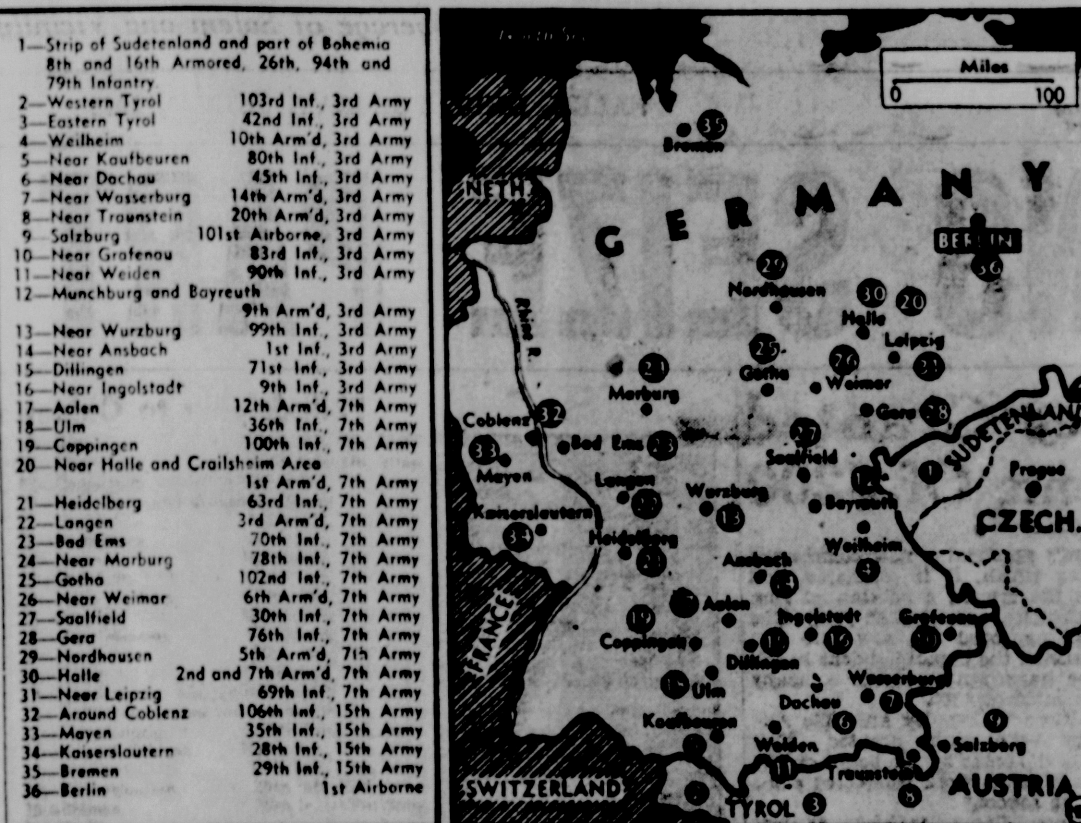

For Wednesday, July 4

A day of much commotion, turbulence and excitement, not only in the way of patriotic celebration but in all sorts of public, group and romantic adventure, all of which may not yield the pleasure and benefit looked for. There is a menace of swerving from the accepted rules and regulations, under emotional or erratic impulses. This culminating in adventures or experiences of danger and regret. Pride, arrogance, eccentric, or defiant gestures might invoke legal entanglement. Maintain composure and how to the lines and conventions in all actions.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of high adventure, commotion and turbulence, in which private adventures as well as public activities play a sensational or dramatic part. The energies may be attuned to strange activities in which originality, inventiveness or singular drives might lead to unforeseen complications, in which public codes, rules and regulations might involve legal entanglements. Impulsive or curious emotions should be suppressed for conventional methods.

A child born on this day may have exceptional, original dramatic talents, which controlled might be of sensational worth and profit. But erratic or irrepressible emotions might exact unhappy penalties.

Experiments On Skin Sterilization

BY HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

FOR more than 75 years, efforts have been made to find some substance which is ideal for sterilizing the skin before a surgical operation.

It is true that the ideal antiseptic has not yet been perfected. It has been shown that there is no known procedure which makes it possible to sterilize the skin completely throughout the layers which are to be cut during an operation.

Ideal Antiseptic
An ideal antiseptic or substance for sterilizing should have at least five properties. It should kill germs in a reasonably short period of time; it should be effective throughout the operation being performed; it should not be neutralized by small amounts of substances with which it may come in contact, such as soaps or oils; it should not irritate the skin; it should be of a color that will show where it has been applied.

In addition, it should also be reasonably inexpensive. Substances which irritate the skin are likely to lower the skin resistance, and so interfere with healing. The skin itself has certain germ-killing powers which should not be interfered with.

Study Made

In an effort to determine, if possible, which of the various antiseptic substances comes nearest to meeting these ideal qualifications, a study was carried out by Doctor Thomas C. Bost of Charlotte, North Carolina. In his study, he employed six substances, namely, tincture of iodine, 7 per cent, tincture of iodine, 3 per cent, three different mercurial preparations, and one special preparation containing an ammonium compound.

All of the work was done at the same institution. The various antiseptics were used one after another on different patients. The preparation of the skin in each case was the same. The skin was first scrubbed with soap, then shaved, and the soap washed off with water. The skin was then wiped with ether, then alcohol. Just before the operation the abdomen was scrubbed with ether, and then the antiseptic solution was applied.

Iodine Solution
In the case of iodine solutions, after drying the excess was rubbed off with alcohol. After this was done, the skin was scrubbed with a sterile knife blade and the knife blade then dropped into a test tube of culture medium, that is, a substance in which bacteria grow. A second knife blade was used to make a cut through the skin and this blade was also dropped into a tube of culture medium.

From the studies made, it was found that the 3 per cent tincture of iodine was about three times as efficient as the next best solutions, namely, the 7 per cent tincture of iodine, and the mercurial solutions.

Tests made when soap and water alone were used for sterilizing the skin, showed that this method could not be considered efficient, although there have been some who have advocated it.

Growth of Germs

In the study carried out by Doctor Bost, it was found that positive cultures or growths of germs occurred about as often in winter as in spring, while in summer, these growths occurred about three times more often. It would appear then, that more care should be used in preparing the skin for operation during the summer, than during the cooler months.

It would seem that a 3 per cent tincture of iodine solution is an effective antiseptic substance, not only for use in pre-operative skin preparation, but also for the treatment of wounds.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. D. J.:—About eight years ago my husband developed a cough. Now he has had pain in his chest for a year. What causes this?

Answer:—Pain in the chest and coughing may be due to many causes such as infections of the lung or tumor growths. The coughing might be the result of secretions dripping from the nose into the throat. Your husband is in need of a careful study by a physician to determine the cause of his trouble. Then proper treatment may be suggested.

D.D.D.:—I am a young woman of seventeen. About three weeks ago I noticed a growth in the groin. It looks like a wart but is soft and spongy. Could you tell me what this is?

Answer: It is impossible to tell from your description just what is causing your trouble. It may be that you have a wart but some other cause may be responsible, such as a cyst. You should consult your physician for an examination so that an accurate diagnosis may be made and proper treatment carried out.

Dr. Bundesen will answer letters containing medical questions only through his column. Address your inquiries to Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, 235 E. 45th st., New York City.

WE FLEW Without GUNS

ENGINE trouble dogged me last few days in February. I had recently been assigned to develop a habit of flying and sputtering and then, about 75 miles out of the starboard engine broke. I ditched off that engine, feathered prop and brought the ship into landing on the good one.

The next morning the Chinese mechanic who had been working on my plane told me that the oil pump was all right; the trouble had been caused by a leaky valve. That was a little hard for me to believe, but I told him to run up the engine and we would see if the pump was okay. Instruments indicated that it was.

An hour later when the ship was loaded and warmed up by co-pilot, Jimmy Mar, Tsui and took off. The fog was so thick we went down the runway. I didn't even see the edge of the field. That in itself was nothing unusual, but the overcast was increasingly thick as we climbed. The altimeter read 14,000 feet before we got out of the clouds, and then we ran into heavy sleet and strong head winds. We were in that for about 15 minutes when the starboard engine shot a geyser of oil through its cowl and blanked out.

With that overcast running all the way down to the field I was going to have to go back on one engine and make an instrument procedural letdown!

When we were fairly near the field, I called the control tower and told them that one of my engines had conked out and to clear the field. I was coming in on the other one.

"What?" the Army man in the control tower cried. "But, Captain, you haven't any visibility at all! I can't even see the end of the runway from the tower. I can't give you clearance for a landing like that!"

I laughed—not because it was the least bit funny, but because it was absurd. "Well, brother," I said, you just damn well better give me clearance because I'm coming in anyway. I'm no Army pilot and you aren't telling me what to do."

We were about a hundred feet off the ground and, according to my calculations, heading right into the landing strip, when the soldier in the tower in wild excitement began shouting, "You've got it! You've got it! That's it! Let her down!" I dropped the gear and we came on in. It was as smooth a landing as I have ever made.

Haddock and Judge Howard E. Adkins resigned simultaneously, then each had the county commissioners appoint him to the other's position.

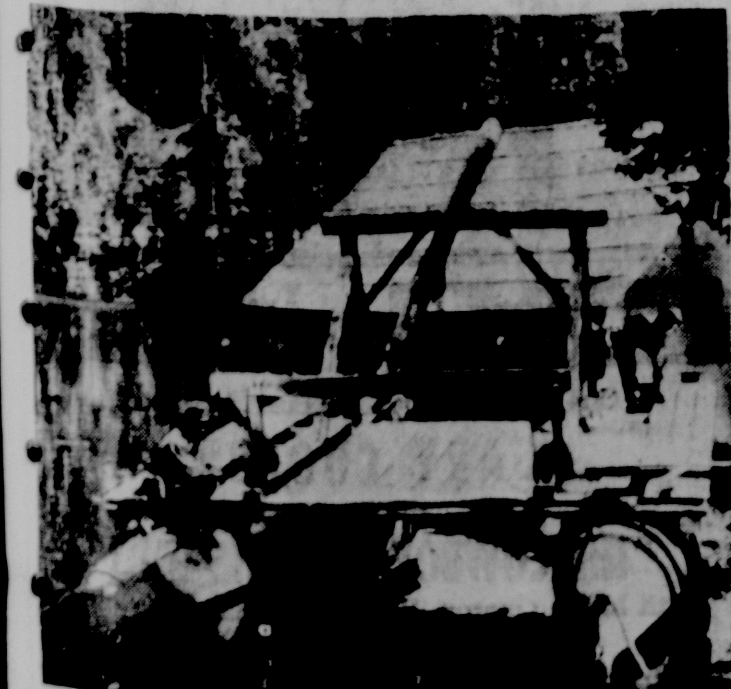

JUST ENOUGH TO START A BREWERY OF HER OWN

ALBANY, N. Y.—An Albany housewife who asked the Dobler Brewing Company to call for her empty beer bottles neglected to warn the driver to bring a large truck. She had amassed 234 quart bottles, a four-year cake, and the truck made seven trips to remove them. The bottles netted the woman $119.05 in refunded deposits.

OKINAWA OURS, MAINLAND NEXT?

NOW THAT OKINAWA (1) has been secured by the U. S. Tenth Army after a long, savage battle, the war against the Japs is expected to be stepped up with a possible land invasion feared by the reeling Nips. Meanwhile, in China the battle continues with victorious Chinese armies advancing to within three miles of the vital airport at Luichow (3), abandoned by the U. S. 14th Air force seven months ago. Tokyo claimed that Jap forces in the Kiangsi province north-east of Hong Kong had routed six Chinese divisions. The Chinese said that the Japs in the Hohong (Luichow) peninsula of western Kwangtung had struck north from Limkong, 270 miles west of Hong Kong. This Jap drive (2), it is believed, is aimed at protecting Jap communications with Hainan.

Long-Missing Household Appliances Won't Return For Months, At Least

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 3—The government slipped its reconversion program into high gear today. Consumers, however, must wait months—at least—before most long-missing household appliances return in quantity to stores.

The War Production board released a "free" supply of metal for civilian goods, the amount depending on what is left over from war demands. It also began a gradual scrapping, over the next half-year, of its priority system for all but munitions items.

Electric and gas refrigerators, for instance, will not reach stores until September or October, and then probably as "demonstrator" models. Housewives will be able to see the new machines and enroll their names on dealers' lists of buyers. However, many purchasers already have ordered sight unseen. This is the conclusion from an informal survey of government and trade sources.

These officials believe it will be the middle of 1946 before refrigerators are freely available for "walk-in" buyers.

When To Expect

Similar guideposts for a dozen other scarce or unobtainable items showed the following: (The first dates indicating when the goods will reach stores and the second date when a good supply will be available.)

Washing machines—Late Aug.; end of 1946.

Vacuum cleaners—A few now; Oct., 1946.

Sewing machines—Nov.-Dec.; Fall, 1946.

Electric irons—Some now; Mid-1946.

Alarm clocks—Some now; End of 1945.

Plated silverware—Now; Nov.-Dec. 1945.

The spurt in reconversion developments started with Fred M. Vinson's report to congress outlining a "postwar economic charter."

Vinson, director of the Office of War Mobilization and reconversion, summarized proposals for increasing the minimum wage, by congressional action, to 50 cents an hour instead of 40 cents; preparing a shelf of blueprints for public works projects to stimulate construction and business, stabilizing the government's fiscal policy at the level of "a full employment" economy.

June Has New Low, Heat Wave Brings Average To Normal

June's average temperature of 64.6 was less than two degrees below normal, despite chilly days the first of the month and a heat wave that brought the month to a close.

Temperatures were below normal the first ten days, dipping to 30 on June 5 and 1, the coolest June nights in 52 years of record-keeping. Weather Observer L. H. Copeland of Millport reports.

From this low figure the mercury climbed to 94 on June 29, four degrees below the highest on record—98 in 1944.

Total precipitation of 3.07 inches was nearly an inch below normal. Rain fell on 12 of the 30 days; there were eight clear days, 16 partly cloudy and six cloudy.

Extreme heat and lack of moisture have lowered the water table considerably, Copeland says, but the year is ahead 3.04 inches in precipitation.

Hay and wheat crops are good. Much hay has been made and wheat soon will be in the shock. Corn is small and will not be knee high by the 4th, Copeland says.

The warmest June on record was in 1934 which had an average of 72; the coolest in 1927 with an average of 60.4. In 1928, the wettest June, 8.38 inches of rain fell and in 1913, the driest, only .72 of an inch was recorded.

June last year had an average

California Casuals With A Future

NEW YORK—Trend-setting styles created by California designers, to show what they intend to do when restrictions are lifted, point to saucier but less bare fashions, and more use of detail to create dressier effects.

Pictured here are four fashions with a present and a future. They were styled by invitation for a Boston preview to show what's coming up from California's top-notch designers.

Example of the "costumed look" for the beach is shown extreme left in the ensemble bathing suit and beach coat modeled by movie star Virginia Mayo. As typically California as palm trees are the big brown leaves which cut a splash on chalk white terry cloth.

The red thistle—more brilliant Americana plucked from California heath—has a future in print, as the midriff cabana dress designed by Fay Foster, shown next, proves. Although more emphasis is put on cover-up, the long skirt is slashed to the knee and midriff breaks are pointed up with black scroll bands.

Slacks, as the swank black gabardine classics prove, are topped by blouses as fancy as you would wear with any suit. On the white crepe shown, black fringe runs along the shoulder inset from wrist to wrist and a loose black tie fastens under the exaggeratedly pointed collar.

Pedal pushers of the future—shown are beige-colored rayon with a lumberjack top, trimmed with black braid of Aztec design—are teamed up with matching headpieces to keep hair in place and give you a completely ensemble effect, even on a two-wheeler.

Cleanse Skin After A Sun Bath

BY ALICIA HART

CLEANSE your skin when you come steaming in from fun in the sun. If you'll use soap, warm water and a complexion brush while pores are relaxed by the heat, you can dig in and give yourself a first-class clean-up.

But if you wait to cleanse your skin until feverish activity abates, and pores contract and close in on soil and make-up, you may find at summer's end that pores look grainy and—perish the thought—a nice skin is polka-dotted with blackheads.

While pores are relaxed by the heat and are clean from scrubbing is the time to massage in a softening cream. If you'll allot a 10 or 15 minutes' stint to this ritual—using a brisk upward motion of your fingertips—you can give yourself the benefits of a first-class facial.

If there is fringe on your hand-crocheted bed spread, brush lightly with a soft brush when laundering in sudsy water.

Household Hints

Try "two-toned" sandwiches by using a slice of white and a slice of whole-wheat bread.

Inspect leftovers and use promptly in warm weather as they may lose their freshness and flavor.

A speck of mace or sweet marjoram added to squash, served any method, puts a new interest in this summer vegetable.

Use cut-up celery tops to flavor stews and soups.

Chicken fat may be used in cooking to replace butter.

Sugarless 4th of July Desserts

Cherry meringue pie for Fourth of July celebration.

By GAYNOR MADDON

You want a gala dessert for the Fourth of July—you also want to save your sugar supplies for Victory Garden canning. Here are two recipes.

Chocolate Charlotte

(Serves 6)

One recipe prepared chocolate pudding, 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon almond extract, 1 or 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 6 ladyfingers or 24 strips of sponge or plain cake.

Prepare pudding as directed on package. Chill, stirring frequently. Add almond extract. Fold in beaten egg whites. Split ladyfingers and cut in half. For each serving, place 4 pieces of ladyfingers or cake in sherbet glass and fill with pudding.

Fruit Meringue Pie

One and one-third cups (15-ounce can) sweetened condensed milk, 1/4 cup lemon juice, 2 eggs, separated, 1 cup sliced cherries or other fruit, 2 tablespoons sugar, cookie crumb crust.

Blend sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice and egg yolks. Fold in sliced strawberries. Pour into pie plate (9-inch) lined with cookie crumb crust. Cover with meringue made by beating egg whites up stiff and adding sugar. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 minutes or until brown. Chill before serving. Or omit the meringue and garnish with cherries.

If the time is too short for meringue, you can still accomplish your pie by using a cookie crumb crust. Just roll enough vanilla wafers to make three-fourth cup of crumbs. Cut enough vanilla wafers in halves to stand around edge of pie plate and put them in place. Cover bottom of plate with crumbs and fill in spaces between halved wafers. Pour in filling as usual.

By ROBBIN COONS

GUAM—Here's a place where it ought to be easy to pick up a nice lot of quaint, native-made souvenirs to send the folks back home. But the line forms at the right and runs far back.

Gummenians are weaving, wood-carving, stringing shells and seeds, and metal-working as they never did before, and still can't meet the demand. They're faced with too many customers at a time when Unen Sam is building up his naval, air and army bases here and has better jobs to offer. This leaves trinket-making a sideline to many.

Under the military government's department of industry and commerce, arts and crafts section, Guam's handicraft business rose to $3,200 gross in May from a $1,000 level in March—with "rationing" ceiling prices, and a relentless anti-black market crusade.

The department's purpose is to build up the native industry. The "rationing"—done by allotting each post exchange and ship's service store its percentage of the output—is done merely to insure fair distribution. The crusade has a double purpose. To persuade the artisans it's more profitable in the long run to contribute to building a steady industry than to make a quick kill from souvenir-hungry, dollar-rich geese—and gobs—and to save the dollars of the G's and G's. They've been known to offer shell-weavers $25 to $50 for a shell purse with a ceiling price of $10.

Stereographer First Class Edward M. Bodaken of Ft. Dodge, Iowa, in charge of the arts and crafts section, has a steady stream of callers at the warehouse and display rooms. He has to explain, many times daily, individual souvenir-seekers can't but there but must go (and hope) at their respective base stores.

He takes and delivers orders from authorized "PX" and ship's store operators—and explains why their quotas can't be raised. He deals with the native agents, who go around delivering materials, conducting organized shell hunts and seed hunts and generally trying to stimulate production and exports.

A girl who is a proficient weaver can make three pandanus cigarette cases a day and earn $2 to 2.25. An average weaver, however, can do better taking in washing for several GI customers.

If she's a whiz at shell-purses—made by crocheting and stringing small tree-snail's houses together—she can make a seven-inch model (unlined, unzipped) in a day and get $6.20. But cost of materials lowers her net profit to around $3.50. The purses, which are beauties or monstrosities according to taste, are in great demand.

Many GIs and Marines, souvenir-thwarted, are driven to desperate measures—like picking off Japs for their Samurai swords.

V. R. Martin, Maytag Sales Director, Has Risen With Company

From a start with the Maytag Co. as house to house retail salesman, Verne R. Martin, in 20 years, has risen to general sales manager for the firm located at Newton, Iowa. He took over his new duties last month.

Martin has been serving as assistant manager of the Kansas City branch of the Maytag Co.

As a sales manager, he will direct Maytag's entire sales organization including those territories served by distributors. He will spend much of his time in the field.

Starting as salesman for the Gill and Davis agency in Decatur, Ill., Martin rang his first doorbell for Maytag July 1, 1925. In his upward climb he subsequently served as manager in Michigan, Indiana and Kentucky, and Ohio.

In 1943, when war production at the plant in Newton was seriously threatened by an acute labor shortage, Martin was drafted as director of personnel procurement. By applying proven methods of salesmanship to that job he soon had a stream of new employees flowing into the factory.

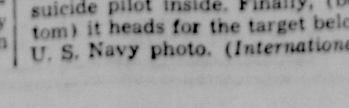

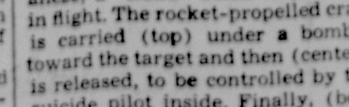

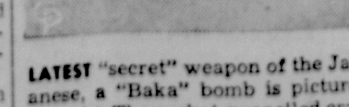

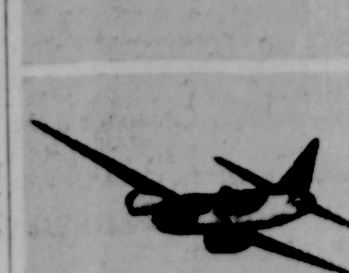

To ease the strain on Newton housing, Martin developed a bus system for bringing commuting workers from many surrounding communities.

After solving this problem for the Maytag factory, Martin went to the Kansas City branch, perennial leader in per capita sales of washers.

Martin is a native of Waucoma, Iowa. As a young man he was employed in a bank at Oelwein and later served the state banking department as bank examiner and deputy superintendent of banking. He engaged in the banking business for a time in Des Moines and Kellogg, Iowa.

His wife is the former Una Collinson of Oelwein. Their son, Staff Sgt. V. R. Martin, Jr., is serving with the field artillery in Germany and their daughter, Mrs. Betty Jeanne Harris, and her 2-year-old daughter, Darby Ellen, are living with them while her husband, Pfc. Harris D. Harris, is in the air corps, expecting orders to ship out to the Pacific war zone.

Sinclairs Bump News 4-3, As Deming Wins Over Eagles 7-3

Oils Win In Extra Frames Over Eight-Man News Team

Demings and Sinclair started the second round of Class A softball at Centennial park with a pair of wins over the Salem News and Eagles, respectively, as operations got under way towards settling who gets the second round bid for the city championship. Demings won, 7-3.

Sinclair eked out a nine inning win over a player-shy News, 4-3, scoring the winning run on a hit down second base way in the ninth after two were out. The ball was technically a hit, but the vacancy created by an eight-man News team allowed it to go into right field before it was fielded. By that time the run was in.

In Class B last night the Zions forfeited to the Youth Center and the Nazarenes forfeited to the Men About Town.

Mutt Schaeffer, hurling for the Oilers, turned in a nice game, slightly marred by six walks. The News only patted out three hits, two of which were those of Bob Miller, who got two in four times at bat.

Chet Brautigam, hurling under definite difficulties, turned in a superb show. With lots of wide open spaces behind him, the News regular held the Oilers to 10 hits and kept them well enough spaced so that getting a run was nearly impossible, despite the player limitations.

The News led off in the first frame with the scoring. Miller scored after leading off with a sharp single over third. Sinclair came back with two runs in the third when Buck Ritchie found an open spot in right field good for four bags and two runs.

Another News run scored in the fourth, tying it up. In the sixth, the News forced ahead again by one run and the Oilers knotted the count in the final seventh. The ninth inning run closed the contest.

The Eagles had as good a night at the plate as Deming, but couldn't touch Kenny Brudery at the right minutes to score with their hits. Walt Ehrhart's eight walks and his teammates five errors failed to do the Eagle cause any good.

Deming bunched their runs in the first and third frames, when they scored four and three respectively.

Both pitchers gave up four hits, but Brudery was by far the top man, fanning seven Eagles and walking only one. Ehrhart fanned one and issued eight free ones.

Manager Gordy Allen of Deming did the honors at the plate for the winners, pumping out two hits for four.

Exercise Gal

Believe it or not, manpower shortage has hit the exercise lads at race tracks and in many cases girls have taken over. Above is Joan Maccher, who hails from Miami, is 20 and owns seven ponies and two mares. Latter are thoroughbreds and she has bred them. She works racers for trainer James McGee.

The War Today

In any event, there are two good arguments for protracted peace. One is that the whole world is so exhausted that it needs rehabilitation over a long period; the other is that the two great aggressor nations will be knocked out and we can sit on their heads for half a century if necessary—maybe longer. So, if the small countries adopt the practical viewpoint, and accept the Big Five as a beneficent guardianship, there's no reason at all why the new peace organization shouldn't work. Whole-hearted cooperation all around will turn the trick.
